Team game

The most common game is the team competition. Two teams of 4 players each try to reach the highest score. The goal is to bring the stocks as close as possible to the target (called „daube“ which is made of rubber) in order to win points.

There are many different possible tactics: you may kick stocks of the other team further away from the target, you may bring one stock of a team member closer to the target or you may change the place of the target or block the target.

We wish you a lot of fun at our ice stock rinks!

Instructions

Basic Rules

- In the team competition, two teams try to bring their ice stocks as close to the target as possible.
- A team normally consists of four players. It is also possible to have teams of 3, 5 or 6 players. Each player has one shot per round and tries to shoot the ice stock as close to the target as possible.
- Only ice stocks that land in the goal area are taken into account. When each player has had a go, and the results have been put down, the round ends.
- The team, whose ice stock is closest to the target, gets 3 points. For every other stock closer to the target than the stocks of the other team, the winning team gets 2 points.
- One game consists of 6 rounds. The teams start the rounds alternatingly – no matter, which team won the last round.
- The team with the highest number of stock points gets two game points, the other one none. If both teams have the same number of stock points, each team gets one game point. The team with the highest number of game points wins. If both teams have the same number of game points, the team with the better ratio between their own stock points and stock points in totals wins.
- If the target lands outside of the target area or stops at the narrower side, it has to be put back onto the cross in the middle. If all stocks land outside the target area because one player tried, the team of this player is next.

The Game

- One team starts by trying to shoot one stock into the target area.
- Then the other team shoots until one of the stocks lands in pole position.
- New stocks may move stocks that are already in the target area. If one stock lands outside of the target area it will be taken out of the game.
- Once one team has played all their stocks, it is the turn of the other team.
- Once both teams have played all their stocks, the round is finished. The team with the stock closest to the target gets stock points. (See basics)
- If the team with the stock closest to the target lands other stocks outside of the target area (because the other team has no stocks left to play), points will be deducted as follows: minus 3 points for the first one, minus 2 points for each other stock not landed in the target area.

- Stock that leave the target area completely will not be taken into account.
